Dear Convenor,

Beyond Snares – A new approach using Humane Cable Restraints

Land Managers believe that, if conventional snares are to be banned, then Humane Cable Restraints (HCRs) should be retained under licence for conservation, mitigating livestock loss and research.

Given there is no possibility of the committee visiting another grouse moor ahead of stage 2, Scotland's Regional Moorland Groups have produced a video that we believe should be considered as substantive evidence by the committee, as it considers the proposal to ban snares. The video transports the committee, via the link below, to see for themselves why HCRs must be retained.

We very much hope the committee will take the time (just 10 minutes) to review this video as evidence.
