12th Meeting, 2023 (Session 6), Wednesday, 26 April

Future agriculture policy: supply chain resilience

Background

1. The Scottish Government launched a consultation on its proposals for future agriculture policy on 29 August 2022. The consultation closed on 21 November 2022. These proposals and consultation are expected to inform the development of a new Agriculture Bill, expected to be introduced later in 2023. The proposals focus on the delivery of outcomes in the following areas—
 - Replacement of the Common Agricultural Policy;
 - Climate change mitigation and adaptation;
 - Nature restoration;
 - High quality food production;
 - Wider rural development; and
 - Improving farm incomes and competitiveness.
2. On 10 February 2023, the Cabinet Secretary for Rural Affairs and Islands wrote to the Committee with an update about the future support framework for agriculture in Scotland. The update included an agricultural reform route map that sets out the timescales for the transition towards a future support framework and for the Scottish Government's interaction with the agricultural industry.

Pre-legislative scrutiny

3. The Rural Affairs and Islands Committee agreed to undertake pre-legislative scrutiny work on future agriculture policy ahead of the introduction of the new Agriculture Bill. The purpose of this pre-legislative scrutiny is to explore the wider policy context that a future agriculture policy will operate within and the outcomes it is intended to achieve.
4. The Committee agreed to hold an evidence session themed on resilience to food production and supply chain pressures within the agriculture sector and on how future agriculture policy could meet those challenges. The Committee will hear evidence from—
 - Paul Flanagan, Stakeholder Engagement Director, Agriculture and Horticulture Development Board;
 - Joe Hind, Policy Manager, Scotland Food and Drink; and

- Kate Rowell, Chair, Quality Meat Scotland.
